Cornerstone Alliance to pay $1.75 million for reconstruction of Yore Avenue

The Berrien County Board of Commissioners has approved an agreement with area economic development group Cornerstone Alliance that will allow for the reconstruction of part of Yore Avenue in Benton Township.

Berrien County Road Department Managing Director, Mark Heyliger, tells us Cornerstone has received some grants from the state to develop the Lake Michigan Industrial Park, a site it's hoping will soon be the home of large industrial or commercial operations. One grant will pay for most of the reconstruction of Yore Avenue from Napier Avenue to Townline Road.

"This summer, due to the partnership with Cornerstone and the grant from the state, we're going to be removing all the concrete on Yore Avenue and replacing it with asphalt and fixing the shoulders, etc., and making sure everything's squared away so that when that area is developed for whatever it got zoned at, it will be able to handle the traffic," Heyliger said.

Cornerstone will contribute $1.75 million for the work, while the county will contribute about $151,000.

County commissioners say this partnership with Cornerstone Alliance will pave the way to better economic development. When asked if it's unusual for a private entity like Cornerstone to cover the cost of a road project, Heyliger told us he can't say that never happens, but it's not something the road department does every year.

Benton Township Supervisor open to ideas for Orchards Mall

Leaders at Benton Township say they're watching the attempted sale of the Orchards Mall property and are willing to keep an open mind if some new developers are interested in the site.

Moody on the Market reported this week the mall is now listed as being for sale -- at a whopping $7.5 million -- and Benton Township Supervisor Cathy Yates tells us that was news to her when she saw the article. Still, she says she wishes luck to the sellers.

"If they feel they can no longer manage the mall to be viable to the community, then I agree with them trying to sell it," Yates said. "I hope they can do so with someone that will make

Celebrating People & Impact in our Communities

More than 300 donors, volunteers, and community partners filled Lake Michigan College's Mendel Center on Thursday, April 23, for United Way of Southwest Michigan's Annual Celebration, a night built around one simple idea: none of this happens without people.

The evening opened with the story of Tyrone, a Southwest Michigan resident whose path to stability ran through partners Michigan Works! Berrien Cass Van Buren and New Heights Auto Service. Before the awards, the games, and the applause, his story served as a reminder of what all of it is actually for. The future of Southwest Michigan isn't something that happens to us. It's something we cultivate when we show up with our strengths.

The evening's awards reflected exactly that.

Kathy Craig received the Margaret B. Upton Volunteer Leadership Award, Berrien County's most prestigious lifetime honor for community service. Craig's work leading New Heights CCDA's Community Food Network, combined with years of service with Habitat for Humanity, the Boys & Girls Club, SMCAA, and a role in launching the Emerge Innovation Hub, made her a clear choice among past MBU recipients, who select each year's honoree. The Frederick S. Upton Foundation will contribute $5,000 to a charity of her choice.

In Cass County, Roseann Marchetti was named the Judge Susan L. Dobrich Volunteer Leadership Award recipient. A County Commissioner since 2012, Marchetti has been involved in nearly every corner of civic life in the county, from the Edwardsburg Food Pantry to the Southwest Michigan Planning Commission to the renovation of the county's 125-year-old historic courthouse. She will direct a $5,000 grant to a Cass County nonprofit of her choice, made possible by the McLoughlin Family Foundation.

The evening introduced a new honor: the inaugural Volunteer United Excellence in Service Award. Its first recipient was Linda Thomson, recognized posthumously for nearly 30 years of service through United Way's Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program. Linda prepared more than 125 tax returns each year, logged more than 200 volunteer hours annually, mentored fellow volunteers, and helped return more than $150,000 in refunds to the people she served. Her son Kyle accepted the award on her behalf.

Alison Harrop of United Christian Services received the Excellence in Impact Award for creating Coffee Connections, a weekly gathering that brings multiple service agencies together under one roof so clients don't have to navigate the system alone. In just the final six months of 2025, 357 households attended, 281 were connected to resources, and 642 individuals were reached.

On the workplace campaign side, Gast Manufacturing took home the Whirlpool Community Commitment Award for a year of standout employee engagement, including five Feeding America Mobile Food Pantries that reached 10,000 people. Logan Autism Learning Center earned the United Federal Credit Union David J. Weichhand Award after replacing its usual single fundraiser with three creative campaign events that more than doubled what the campaign had previously raised.

Berrien RESA received the Live United Organization Award, and Thaddeus Hackworth was named the Live United Individual Award recipient. Cathy Summers of Indiana Michigan Power's Cook Nuclear Plant and Jill Tooman of Western Diversified Plastics/Engineered Plastic Services were named Employee Campaign Coordinators of the Year.

United Way of Southwest Michigan's Annual Celebration was made possible by Whirlpool Corporation, Michigan Works! Berrien Cass Van Buren, Silver Beach Pizza, and The Southwest Michigan Regional Chamber; The David J. Weichhand Award Sponsor United Federal Credit Union; Gold Sponsor Sturgis Bank; Bronze Sponsors Kruggel Lawton CPAs and The Purpose Partners; and in-kind sponsors Competitive Edge, Lake Michigan College, and Martin's Super Markets.

something that we can all enjoy as a community, whether it's businesses, residents, however it is. But whomever should purchase, or if they continue to keep the mall, they should be working with our housing department in order to make sure it's a good fit for the community."

That's so the building can be kept up to code, something Yates said has been a challenge. We asked if the township would consider supporting a non-commercial proposal for the site.

"I think that we would listen and consider other things within the zoning."

Yates said she's not sure if the mall's owners owe money to the township, but they sure do owe money to the county.

Berrien County Treasurer, Shelly Weich, tells us the mall still owes $198,000 for the 2024 property taxes and $197,000 for the 2025 property taxes. She notes the mall's owner paid the 2023 property taxes in late March, just in time to avoid foreclosure, something they have a track record of doing.

Weich also said she had the assessed value of the building itself listed as $1.7 million. However, that's not the full picture because the 63-acre site is broken up into about ten different parcels.

Lake Michigan College Celebrates 30 Years of Upward Bound

Lake Michigan College is celebrating a milestone this academic year: 30 years of the Upward Bound program supporting first-generation, low-income students from the Benton Harbor area in their journey to and through higher education. Since its arrival at LMC, Upward Bound has served as a transformative force in the lives of hundreds of students, equipping them with the skills, confidence, and resources to pursue postsecondary success.

Funded by the U.S. Department of Education, Upward Bound provides college preparatory services to students at Benton Harbor High School who have the potential to become the first in their families to earn a bachelor's degree. The program serves up to 78 students annually, with approximately 95% identifying as first-generation college-goers and 88% also qualifying as low-income.

"The Upward Bound program at Lake Michigan College empowers students at local high schools to achieve academic excellence through hands-on enrichment opportunities, college and career preparation, and leadership development," said Jacob Sall, Director of Upward Bound at LMC. "Thirty years of that mission is a testament to the dedication of our staff, the trust of our partner schools, and, above all, the resilience and drive of every scholar who has walked through our doors."

Thirty Years of Results

The program's commitment to student success is reflected in strong and consistent outcomes:

1.Up to 78 students served each academic year through partnerships with Fair Plain Middle School, Mildred C. Wells Preparatory Academy, and Benton Harbor High School.

2. In 2023–24, 10 of 13 seniors (77%) enrolled in postsecondary education, including Lake Michigan College, Grand Valley State University, and Ferris State University.

3. In 2024–25, 7 of 9 seniors (78%) went on to postsecondary institutions including LMC, Western Michigan University, and Texas State University.

4. This year's Class of 2026 has achieved the program's best outcome yet: 18 of 19 seniors have already been accepted to a postsecondary institution, all with plans to attend. Students are heading to LMC, Western Michigan University, Grand Valley State University, and beyond.

A Year-Round Commitment to Scholar Success

Upward Bound at LMC provides comprehensive, year-round support that goes far beyond the classroom. During the academic year, scholars receive academic advising, weekly tutoring sessions, SAT/ACT preparation, financial literacy workshops, college application support, and monthly Saturday college-prep sessions held on the LMC campus.

Each summer, scholars participate in the six-week Upward Bound Summer Academic Institute (UBSAI), during which they take courses in mathematics, laboratory science, foreign language, composition, and literature, and get to experience college life firsthand with an overnight stay in LMC's Beckwith Hall. Educational excursions to colleges, museums, theaters, and businesses round out the experience, giving students a window into a world of possibilities.

Looking Ahead

As LMC's Upward Bound program enters its fourth decade, the work continues. Eight current scholars have indicated plans to attend Lake Michigan College, with Western Michigan University and Grand Valley State University also among top choices. The program remains a vital bridge between potential and opportunity for the students of Benton Harbor.

For information about Upward Bound at Lake Michigan College, contact the Upward Bound office or visit lakemichigancollege.edu.

Refrigerant Revolution: R-22, R-410A and R-454B Reshape Air Conditioning Costs

Air conditioning systems rely on refrigerants to cool homes efficiently, but evolving environmental regulations have driven major shifts in the types available. Homeowners now navigate older R-22 units, transitional R-410A systems, and the newer R-454B technology, each with unique effects on expenses, repairs, and the choice between fixing or replacing equipment.

R-22 once served as the standard refrigerant in residential cooling units. Fully phased out of production since 2020 because of its ozone-depleting potential and high global warming contribution, it remains in many systems more than 15 years old. Scarcity has pushed prices well above $200 per pound. A typical recharge, which often requires several pounds, can total hundreds or thousands of dollars including labor. Minor leaks in these aging units commonly demand repeated service visits, rendering repairs economically unsustainable. In most cases, the refrigerant cost alone approaches or exceeds the price of a new, higher-efficiency system, leading many service professionals to advise full replacement rather than continued maintenance.

R-410A succeeded R-22 in new equipment beginning around 2010. It provided zero ozone depletion and better performance in modern compressors. Its high global warming potential, however, triggered a phase-down for new manufacturing that began in 2025. Supplies for existing systems continue but are tightening, driving prices toward $100 or more per pound in many instances. Homeowners with R-410A units from the past decade or so should prepare for climbing repair bills whenever leaks develop. Recharges that once felt routine may now strain household budgets, particularly as production tapers further through 2036. These mid-age systems can still receive service for years, yet regular maintenance becomes essential to prevent escalating costs.

R-454B now stands as the required refrigerant for new residential air conditioning systems. It delivers a global warming potential roughly 78 percent lower than R-410A while eliminating ozone-depleting compounds. Classified as mildly flammable, the blend necessitates updated safety features and modest equipment redesigns. These changes have raised the initial cost of new systems by 10 to 25 percent. Refrigerant itself begins around $300 per pound but remains readily available and is projected to stabilize. New R-454B units frequently match or exceed the energy efficiency of predecessors, helping balance higher upfront investment through reduced long-term operating expenses.

Deciding between repair and replacement depends on system age, overall condition, and refrigerant type. A straightforward recharge on an R-410A or R-454B unit may run $150 to $600 with labor when the leak is minor and repairable. In contrast, extensive work or repeated recharges on R-22 systems often surpass $1,000 and deliver only temporary relief. Complete central system replacement, generally $5,000 to $12,000 depending on size and efficiency rating, frequently proves the smarter financial step for older equipment. New R-454B installations not only satisfy current rules but also minimize future maintenance risks and environmental impact.

As regulations tighten further, homeowners benefit from periodic system evaluations. Choosing modern refrigerant technology delivers reliable cooling, controls lifetime expenses, and aligns with sustainability objectives.

Minding the Pee and Queues

My recent visits to Florida's Universal theme parks wouldn't be complete without my universally beloved columns about it, right? So, enjoy the thrills! Well, after I get you through the queues.

• There's a new-to-us attraction at Universal Studios – the Skull Island: Reign of Kong ride. The queue theme suggests the stockpiling of supplies and other preparations for an "expedition." At a couple different spots, we lingered next to huge wooden crates labeled "NORTON'S Roasted Coffees."

I couldn't help but wonder if Norton's Roasted Coffees was a real enterprise. I web-searched it, and phooey, it doesn't appear there ever was such a company. (Although there was a guy named Michael Norton who precipitated a scandal in the early 1990s by selling Kona coffee that WASN'T authentic Kona coffee.)

• Incidentally, we'd wavered for hours about whether to get in line for Reign of Kong – the waits were quite long because it routinely broke down for long stretches. When we finally bit the bullet and queued up for it, sure enough, it took a good bit of time to get on it. Fortunately, we got to experience being stopped and stuck on it! Yeah, grrrrreat fun, that!

The reason the ride stopped?: After scads of admonitions from pre-recorded and live Universal cast members to "Remain SEATED, do NOT stand UP on the ride!," someone stood up on the ride! Rumor has it a guy squirmed out of his seat because his bladder was near bursting. From drinking too much inauthentic Kona coffee.

Yes, it's true: He could've – but didn't – mind his pee in the queue.

• Herewith, a bit of clever wordplay at the Harry Potter and the Escape from Gringotts ride at Universal Studios: As part of the pre-ride experience, patrons pile into an "elevator" to be conveyed to the bowels of Gringotts bank. The floor-indicator-gizmo reads as follows: "Deep>Deeper>Extremely Deep>Extraordinarily Deep>Even Deeper Again>Bottom." As I almost always do when I see amusing amusement park signage, I took a photo of this. Oddly, these kinds of photos never seem to make it into the "year in review" Shutterfly books my wife makes every year.

• Universal Studios now has a ride based on the never-ending series of Minions movies. It's called Despicable Me: Minion Mayhem. You enter the home of Gru (the self-styled "world's greatest villain," and the "Me" in Despciable Me) on your way to a ride that promises to turn humans into Minions. The queue has quite a few funny features, ranging from the ridiculous to the even-more-ridiculous, such as:

A lion's head mounted on the wall. Mounted in the lion's jaws is a hound dog. Mounted in the dog's jaws is a cat. And mounted in the cat's jaws is a mouse.

In a pre-show video set in a glass control booth, Gru fires a fart gun at the audience.

But the gun instead releases a banana scent. Two minions (they LOVE bananas) begin licking the control booth window.

In Gru's "living room" I spotted a glossy travel magazine, called "Devious Destinations." Stories promoted on the cover include "Expert Packing Tips for a Quick Getaway," "Castles and Caves: The Best Lair B&Bs," and my favorite, "The 15 Best Skull-Shaped Islands." The cover photo features one of them – it's Kong's Skull Island! And the Reign of Kong ride is clearly visible. But it's broken down.

Chosen by God

Why does rejection hurt so much? When the word “No” reverberates from your ears through your mind and into your heart, it can be hard to take. Such a small word can make such a big impact. Am I doing a good job? “No.” Do I get the position? “No.” Does the deal sound good to you? “No.” Do you love me? “No.” Does this make me look pretty? “No.”

Ouch!

It doesn’t matter how much people try to soften it, no is still no. You see it in the look in their eyes, and you hear it in the hesitation of their voice. It hurts.

Rejection can harden you, so you become callous and careless of others. It can also crush you so you become debilitated and feel helpless.

Jesus knows rejection. His own family thought he was nuts during his ministry (Mark 3:21). Some crowds that followed him turned away after their expectations of him were disrupted (John 6:66). A few of his closest friends and students abandoned him at one of his lowest points (Matthew 26). He knows what it’s like.

As you come to him, the Living Stone, rejected by men but chosen by God and precious, you also, like living stones, are being built as a spiritual house to be a holy priesthood. (1 Peter 2:4-5)

Jesus knows rejection. But the rejection was from people. His approval was grounded in God alone. Jesus was chosen by God to fulfill the plan to save us. It was through his rejection that we become chosen by God.

When houses were built with field stones, each one was handpicked for a specific place because of its shape and form. It all fits together like a puzzle to make a strong house. God handpicks us and uses us for a purpose.

If you find yourself too worked up about rejection by people, perhaps you put too much stock in their thoughts and opinions. Because of Jesus, you don’t have to be enslaved to the “yes” or “no” that comes from people. Because of Jesus, God chose you. Because of Jesus, God sees you as useful. Because of Jesus, God makes you part of his house along with all the other stones.

This makes you no longer callous and careless, but kind and encouraging. It makes you no longer crushed and debilitated, but hopeful and confident. God chose you.

You may be rejected here, and that can hurt. But that is temporary. God’s choice to keep you for a purpose is eternal and overpowers any rejection this world can bring.

Consider the last time you experienced rejection in light of what God says to you.

Prayer: Dear Father, you chose me. I’m sorry for allowing people’s thoughts and opinions to override what you say about me. Help me find my security in what you make me through your Son, my Savior. Amen.

Welcome New Members!

With a blink of an eye, April has come to a close and we’re officially into May! A month full of fun and exciting things ahead, including Mother’s Day, the Blossomtime Parade, Sip! Buchanan, and the official Michigan kick-off to summer with Memorial Day! If you’re like me, you’re already planning ahead for those suntan lines, beach days, and making memories with your friends and family.

A new month also means an opportunity to continue highlighting some of our new members, including one that has a ribbon cutting that you’re NOT going to want to miss coming up later this month!

Michigan Sustainable Business Forum promotes business practices that advance climate leadership, social justice and the creation of a circular economy.

Through our membership program, we are Michigan’s leading organization for beyond-compliance sustainability practitioners, serving its most recognizable brands, largest employers and most innovative entrepreneurs, advocates and educators, as well as the public sector. Through our campaigns and advocacy, we serve partners and diverse stakeholders as a boundary organization committed to the development of practices, policies and partnerships that improve community resilience and equity.

Last, but not least - she’s been a joy to work with, it’s Profit Pulse Financial. They help business owners improve profitability, take home more money, and gain clarity on their finances so they can make confident, strategic decisions.

Founded by Alexia McCuan, Profit Pulse was built to bring big-company financial leadership to small businesses.

“Small business owners are expected to make major financial decisions without the level of support that larger companies have built in. I’ve worked inside those environments—where there’s clarity, structure, and forward-looking strategy—and I wanted to bring that same level of insight to business owners so they can grow with confidence and actually achieve what they set out to build.”

Many business owners are excellent at what they do but lack clear visibility into their numbers. Profit Pulse bridges that gap by turning financial data into actionable steps that drive revenue, improve margins, and strengthen cash flow.

Know your numbers. Grow your profit. Profit Pulse is here to help.
